Description

The Minute Books are bound, & all except the first volume are typed. The first volume, which dates 16 March 1922 to 25 September 1922 contains the rough, unsigned, handwritten minutes. This volume is incomplete in sections & also contains information that has been typed and glued to the relevant pages.

The signed minutes of the Board start from Vol 2. The minute books are typed and arranged in reverse chronological order, the minutes of the first meeting start at the back of the volume. At the beginning of each volume is an alphabetic index giving page numbers as the references.

The general format is as follows: announcement of the meeting, date, time and location, members present, confirmation of minutes, accounts, adjourned business, reports, correspondence, general business, & Chairman's signature. The minutes of various committees are also included. All numbered reports & other matters are attached to the minutes.

The minute books have been microfilmed, and microfilms are stored at the Otahuhu office.

Chronological by newspaper

Description

This series includes newspaper cuttings dating back to 1926 from several Auckland newspapers such as the New Zealand Herald, The Sun Herald and the Auckland Star.

The cuttings have been pasted into large scrap-books and each cutting is identified with a date. The cuttings represent all spheres of AEPB.

They include public notices, job advertisements, articles of interest and anything else which would possibly involve the board.

The volumes are out of chronological order, as some volumes 'appeared' in the basement during 1993, and have been added to the end of the sequence.

Arrangement

By contract number

Description

This series contains the successful contracts for AEPB. The contracts have been numbered and are usually prefixed with a letter. The early contracts dating from 1911-27 had no numbers attached, thus item numbers were allocated by the archivist. The more common letter prefix for the contracts are C = construction and cables, S = switchgear and substations, and T = transformers, trenching and excavating.

Most contracts contain a specification for the job, paper for the tender and memorandum of agreement which is signed and stamped.

A number of contracts are missing.

Description

Mercury is the staff magazine for AEPB. It contains information about staff members, events, functions and photos. Other items covered include "Views from the Board Table", lists of officers, social club members and other items of historical interest.

The title "Mercury" was taken from the Board's official insignia. Mercury was the Roman counterpart of the Greek god Hermes, the winged messenger and herald of the Olympian Gods. He was the God of Commerce, the patron of clever inventions and the giver of all kinds of wealth. Mercury earned a golden wishing rod of magical powers, which the board has converted to a flash of electricity.

Originally published bi-monthly, and bound into volumes, later it was published monthly, and in 1990-91 the format, size and numbering changed, and they were published quarterly.

Description

This series contains field books from system planning staff, showing the original plan of a job done while on site.

Plans are a diagram of work to be done, show lengths of cable, voltage required, other installation details as required. Indexes are included.

Systems planning deal with installations over 22,000 KV, known as subtransmission cables.

The books are of value for permanent reference even though the plans have been copied onto the computer system. Staff may need to refer to the original drawings.

Description

So named because they are the original series, (new series began about 1970) this series contains the field books from the Central Drawing Office, showing the original plan of a job done by the draughtsmen on site. Central area D.O dealt with all jobs with cables involving up to 11,000 KV, i.e. domestic and light industrial installations.

Plans are a diagram of work to be done, showing cable lengths, voltage and other construction details. In fragile condition, the series has some pages with tape on them and some that are loose. There is an index system to the books, listed as series 69.

The books are of value for permanent reference even though the plans have been copied on to the computer system. Staff may need to refer to the original drawing. They also show position of industry, shops, banks, etc.

Series Title

Chief Engineers Records, Mr Keys

Department of Origin

Engineering

Dates Included

1932 - 1979

Arrangement

No particular order

Description

Series comprises files on various subject matters compiled by the former Chief Engineer Mr. Keys. The files generally comprises duplicate records, and therefore they have been extensively culled. The subject matter files and engineering records such as the substation files should also contain similar information. The files were carefully compiled and labelled, in manila folders, but in no discernible order. The archivist retained records with statistical information, or technical/historical files that may not be in the same format elsewhere. A second series of files from Mr Keys included records relating to accidents, including fatal accidents, as well as records relating to power restrictions and load shedding, as a result of drought around 1973 and later industrial action in 1976.
